DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention – including the claimed field emission device - to which the claims are directed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Hamden-Smith et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,180,029).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2855

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Peterson (U.S. Patent No. 5,821,685), Peterson (U.S. Patent No. 5,747,100), or Hamden-Smith et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,180,029).

Peterson '685, Peterson '100 and Hamden-Smith et al. each teach all of the essential features of the claimed phosphor particles and field emission device replete with phosphor screen comprising said phosphor particles, with the exception of all of the particular phosphor particle sizing and particular coating thicknesses. However, it is noted that each of Peterson '685, Peterson '100 and Hamden-Smith et al. explicitly disclose the importance of advantageous phosphor particle sizing as well as coating thicknesses with constituent mixtures. Further, Peterson '685, Peterson '100 and Hamden-Smith et al. explicitly disclose or suggest the same chemical properties, function, and purpose for their respective phosphor particles and field emission devices (using said phosphor particles) as those claimed in the instant alleged. Because of this - and absent a persuasive showing of significant secondary considerations (e.g., long felt but unmet need or unexpected surprise) - the modification of the particular phosphor particle size and coating thicknesses (e.g., barrier material thickness or conductive material) in the field emission device of Peterson '685, Peterson '100 and Hamden-Smith et al. is considered to have been a mere matter of obvious design choice clearly within the purview of one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention.
